Last Week - October 30th

Program: Ronda Rich

Ronda Rich gave the club a great first impression on her first trip to Milledgeville. She was the first female sports writer in the state and the first woman in the Chicago Cubs locker room. She is quoted as seeing a "bare cub" there.

Tommy Jefferson & Ronda Rich

When Ronda stopped writing sports she started on her first book, "What Southern Women Know that Every Women Should." After her book went up to auction, it was purchased and she was given a 6 figure salary on it, country music star, Reba was given the option to do a sitcom on it.

One story from the book was about her cousin Wilma. Wilma believed that for the past 30 years she has been married to Burt Reynolds. At her last birthday, the family asked Wilma if Burt was going to be able to make it to the party, and she simply said no, but their son would be here shortly!

When Ronda was asked to interview with Barbara Walters, the producers were trying to make it very authentic and southern. They decided that Barbara and Ronda would drink mint juleps while they "chatted." When Ronda was asked for the exact recipe of a mint julep, she said she didn't know because her family was not quite the julep kind, they were much more of the moonshine kind!

Rotarian of the day: John Ferguson
